TO THE PUBLIC.

It will doubtless be recollected by same, that, some years age, I was called upon to lay before the critizens of New-York a statement of the injuries resulting from the practice of two notorious individuals by the name of Crawcour, who advertised in strong language the unequaled and incomparable quality of their royal mineral succedaneum for Siliag teeth, which being analysed, proved to be nething more than a vice and soisonous composition of mercury and silver; and on their being exposed, and industed for their swindling operations, were compelled to escape from the country.

It again becomes my duty to state that the same royal mineral succedaneum is now used by Monsiem Mallan, lately arrived in this city, under the name of his celebrated mineral paste, as proved by the analysis of Or. Chilton, a distinguished and well knows chemist of this city, who was also employed to analyse the royal mineral succedaneum of the Messrs, Crawcour.
